

The irony of politics was never better illustrated than by what Sam G. Harris wrote in Sunday's Arkansas Gazette.

Governor Sid McMath, with only a few hours left in the executive office, was cleaning out his desk when he found a copy of a letter he had written on January 12, 1952 — exactly a year ago — to Governor Paul Devers of Massachusetts.

Devers wanted Sid's frank opinion whether Harry S. Truman should run again for President. Here I am quoting Harris' story: "McMath's reply, never before made public, said he thought not only that Truman should not run again but also that the President should refrain from casting his political mantle on the Democratic nominee."

"As he scanned the copy of the correspondence, McMath chuckled and remarked: 'I didn't know then I was to have that mantle draped on me.' (Truman endorsed McMath and urged his re-election last summer.)"

Equally ironic is the fact that elective officeholders engaged in a campaign seldom if ever reject endorsement when it is proffered by a superior official. Not even the historic odds that such an action places against them will persuade 'em to rise up and say "No!"

Actually, of course, the proffering of such endorsement by the President puts a mere governor on a spot of deadly jeopardy: If he says "Thanks" he runs headon into the brick wall of history — but if he says "No!" he has made another enemy, presumably the most powerful of all.

A thoroughly competent President would certainly avoid throwing his political weight around in local campaigns; but more skilled Presidents than Harry S. Truman have felt the stimulus of power and thus spread embarrassment and disaster at the local level.

Perhaps some day we'll live to see the "endorsed" man tell the "endorser" No — and find out what the odds are when you make that reply.

Fewer Hours, More Work Is Senate Plan

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans for "fewer hours and more work" from the Senate are under study by the new Republican leadership.

One GOP senator, who asked that his name not be used, told a reporter today the proposed speedup includes these moves:

1. Trying to hold the usual daily Senate sessions to about five hours.
2. Giving committees more time to do their work by holding fewer daily sessions of the whole Senate.
3. Eliminating the custom of permitting any senator to force a quorum call, delaying action, when it is apparent that 49 or more senators, required to conduct business, are present.
4. Encouraging talkative senators to have their remarks printed in the Congressional Record instead of delivering them on the floor and forcing the Senate to stay in session.

Churchill Works on War Memoirs

TOWER ISLE, Jamaica, Jan. 12 (AP) — British Prime Minister Churchill worked on his war memories and lolled in the tropical sun today at his walled and guarded vacation retreat here.

He was reported to be getting in some painting and swimming also. Yesterday another prominent escapee from Britain's wet winter cold, publisher Lord Beaverbrook, drove through the guarded entrance of prospect estate for a luncheon date with Churchill.

Hoover Turns Down Juicy Offer

NEW YORK (UP) — J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has turned down a $1,000,000 offer to become chairman of the Board of the International Boxing Club, it was announced today.

I.B.C. President James D. Norris said Hoover declined the offer in a telegram, stating that he could not consider accepting it at this time.

Truman Orders Suit Against Oil Firms Dropped

WASHINGTON (UP) President Truman directed the attorney general today to drop criminal proceedings against five American oil companies in the "interest of national security if the companies produce subpoenaed records."

Mr. Truman directed Attorney General James P. McGranery to confer "promptly" with oil company representatives to determine if they will agree to enter into a stipulation to produce the subpoenaed documents.

"If they will," Mr. Truman said in a letter, "I ask that a civil proceeding be instituted accordingly and that appropriate steps be taken to cause the termination of the pending grand jury proceedings."

McGranery scheduled meeting with attorneys for 20 oil companies.

Court Upholds Findings of Spa Miner

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court today upheld the claim of a Hot Springs man to $12,951 for his work in locating a silica deposit near Rogers, Ark., in a case reminiscent of the grub-staking days of the old West.

The high court held that H. R. McKnight was entitled to payment of the money from the Oak Ridge Minerals, Inc., of Benton County.

In 1946, McKnight entered into an agreement with O. B. Sanner of Kerrville, Tex., under which McKnight, a mining engineer, was to search for silica deposits in Arkansas. Sanner paid McKnight $47.50 per week as a "brubster" in his prospecting work.

McKnight was able to find a deposit and develop it into the finished product, he was to receive 25 per cent of the business.

McKnight launched his hunt in the Hot Springs area and it was unsuccessful. Then he went to Benton County where he found the deposit near Rogers.

Sanner furnished $150.00 to build a processing plant, but died before the plant had been completed, leaving the bulk of his estate to his widow. The plant never was entirely completed, and the property was sold to the Oak Ridge Company.

McKnight then was injured in an automobile accident and hospitalized. He was informed by Sanner's heirs at that time that he would receive a final weekly check in his grubstake money and would get no further benefits from the Sanner estate or the Oak Ridge firm.

The Benton Chancery Court held that McKnight's oral agreement with Sanner to receive 25 per cent of the plant's proceeds was valid, and that he was entitled to $20,000 less his weekly checks for his work in discovery of the deposit and in building the finished portion of the plant.

The Supreme Court opinion, written by Associate Justice Sam Robinson, held that McKnight was more than a common laborer or a prospector and that Sanner must have considered him a successful business man. Otherwise, Robinson held, Sanner would not have entrusted McKnight with construction of a $150,000 project.

The high court unanimously affirmed the lower court's ruling.

UN Troops Batter Back Red Attacks

By VICTOR KENDRICK

SEOUL, Korea, (UP) — United Nations troops battered back three separate attacks by 1,500 Communists on the Eastern front today, killing 260 enemy soldiers participating in the heaviest Red effort of the year.

At the same time Allied warplanes stepped up their three-day pounding of vital Red supply routes north of Sinaju.

Chinese Communists also threw an unsuccessful 250-man attack against two Allied advance positions west of Chwon on the Central front.

The reinforced ROK army repulsed the major Red assault when a battalion charge of 700 men attacked just northeast of the Punchbowl area.

In less than two hours the North Korean Communists had powered their way into close quarters. Then for twenty minutes the South Koreans fought off the Reds with knives, bayonets and grenades until their Chinese commander realized he was beaten and called off the attack.

Mrs. Fulbright, Fayetteville Editor, Dies

FAYETTEVILLE, (AP) — Mrs. Roberta Vaughn Fulbright, newspaper publisher and the mother of U.S. Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) died at her home here yesterday following a prolonged heart illness. She was 78.

Sen. and Mrs. Fulbright are expected to arrive here this afternoon from Washington.

A native of Rothville, Mo., Mrs. Fulbright was publisher of the Northwest Arkansas Times of Fayetteville and headed other business interests until the past few years.

Mrs. Fulbright and her late husband, Jay, came to Fayetteville in 1906 and seven years later Fulbright included an interest in the Fayetteville Daily Democrat, now the Times, in his expanding business activities. He died in 1923.

Mrs. Fulbright served as president of two banks, a lumber company, a mercantile firm, a soft drink bottling company and an ice company.

She acquired full ownership of the Times in 1926.

A strong Democrat and supporter of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Fulbright wrote a column, "Mother of the Year," which was credited indirectly for moving Sen. Fulbright from education to political fields.

When Fulbright was University of Arkansas president in 1940, Mrs. Fulbright wrote a column criticizing the election of Homer Adkins as governor of the state. Fulbright was removed as University president by Adkins in 1941 and the following year he ran for and won a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

In 1944, Adkins was defeated by Fulbright for the Senate seat.

Mrs. Fulbright was named Arkansas "Mother of the Year" in 1947. She was an honorary lifetime president of the Arkansas Newspaper Women.

She attended the University of Missouri, was a member of the Christian Church, Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and many social and garden clubs.

Other survivors include her son, Jack Fulbright of Pine Bluff, Ark., and three daughters, Mrs. Helen Douglas of Fayetteville; Mrs. Kenneth Teasdale of St. Louis and Mrs. Gilbert Swanson of Omaha. A fourth daughter, Mrs. Lucille Gilbert, died in 1925.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m., Wednesday at the First Christian Church here. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Lindsey to Go Into Insurance Work

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Retiring State Police Director Herman Lindsey said yesterday that he will become an insurance director at Little Rock when he leaves office.

Lindsey, who has held every rank in the state police during his 12 years on the force, will be associated with Sol J. Russell, Little Rock attorney, in handling adjustments of losses for several fire and casualty companies in Arkansas.

Lindsey, who will be succeeded by Lindsey Hatchett, served as director for four years under Gov. McMath.

State Adds Three Reserve Air Groups

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Col. Ewing W. Kincaid, commanding officer of the 616th VART Air Force Reserve Group, announced that three new Air Force Reserve Flights have been formed in Arkansas.

The flights and their commanders are at Bentonville, Maj. Joe E. Johnson; Malvern, Maj. Neil Phelan; and Mena, Lt. Col. Walter Geyer.

Academy Award Director Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — H. Gordon Jennings, 56, Paramount Studio special effects director and five-time winner of Academy Awards, died, apparently of a heart attack, as he played golf with friends at the Lakeside course yesterday.

He won an Academy Award for his work in "Sampson and Delilah" and last year for "When Worlds Collide."

Egyptian Leader Swears to Oust British at Suez

CAIRO, Egypt, (UP) — Strongman Premier Mohammed Naguib today he would throw the British out of the disputed Suez Canal zone. At the same time his government signed a new separate agreement with the government of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

(London official quarters said the two moves, threatening to topple Anglo-Egyptian relations to the chaotic level of last year's riots and bloodshed, have precipitated a new crisis.)

Naguib, speaking to 10,000 students on the campus of Cairo university during a ceremony honoring students killed in clashes with British troops in the Canal zone a year ago, said:

"None of us will continue to live on this earth if (British) occupation forces remain in our fatherland. No one should ever entertain the least doubt that we are determined to attain this objective."

It was the premier's strongest endorsement to date of the growing demands in many Egyptian quarters for action to oust the British.

This statement, coupled with the signing in Khartoum of an agreement with the Sudan which disregarded various British wishes, threatened to collapse negotiations which had, until recently, appeared to be progressing toward settlement.

Contractor Must Pay Tax, Court Decides

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — In a divided opinion the Arkansas Supreme Court today held that the contracting combine which constructed the Naval Ammunition depot at Shumaker, near Camden, had to pay the Arkansas two per cent gross receipts tax on two diesel tractors purchased in December, 1950.

The decision reversed a ruling of Pulaski Chancery Court, Second Division, which held that the United States was the purchaser and that, therefore, the tax which amounted to $342.93 on the $17,148 purchase could not be collected.

The Supreme Court ruling up-held Revenue Commissioner Carl F. Parker who had collected the tax from the seller Kern-Limerick Inc., of Little Rock.

Kern-Limerick paid the tax under protest and then filed suit for its recovery. The United States intervened in the suit adopting the contention of the seller that the sale was to it and not to the contractor.

The gross receipts law, a 1941 act, provides that no tax shall be paid on sales to the United States.

The Supreme Court commented that the question confronting it was Continued on Page Two

County Wildcat Oil Test Drilling at 3,400 Feet

In Hempstead County the California Oil Company is reported to be drilling around 3,400 feet at the Bodenw Bank No. 3, in the center of SW NE of Section 33-14-23.

The company has announced a new location, a wildcat test, the L. S. Foster No. 1, which is 1222 feet east and 1838 feet north of the SW corner of section 8-15-25 in Lafayette county to be drilled to a depth of 7,200 feet.

Controversy Over Doctor's Draft Looms

WASHINGTON (UP) — Congressional sources reported today that a hot new controversy is boiling up around the so-called "doctors' draft."

Something must be done about it soon. The law under which physicians and dentists through age 50 can be prodded into uniform is due to expire July 1.

Members said there is pretty general agreement it must be extended. The need for medical personnel in the military continues, and the services contend they can't get enough volunteers without a draft law to serve as a persuader.

The present law set up four categories.

First considered were men who during World War II got their training at government expense or who were deferred from service to go to school on their own. Category one comprises men in this group who after training served on active duty less than 90 days; category two, those who served more than 90 days but less than 21 months.

Next come men who didn't train at government expense and who weren't deferred from the draft in World War II. Men in this group who never saw military service went in category three; those who saw some service, in category four.

Category one is used up. Current calls are being filled from category two. It won't be long before category three will be tapped. The question is whether to leave this category as is, or change it.

The services are under pressure to hold down rank. Some military men say category three, as now defined, will bring in too many older men who will be entitled, by age and experience, to considerable rank.

They say category four embraces many younger men — young enough to have served in World War II — who wouldn't rate so much brass.

Rumblings of a possible move to reverse the two categories have prompted bitter letters of protest from veterans in what is now category four. They contend the fair way is to take men who have never served a day ahead of those who have already put in one hitch in uniform.

No Doubt About It the Thing That Impresses Men Most in This World Is — Women

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The thing that impresses men most in this world is — women.

The thing about women that probably impresses men is the fact they never have to tie a string around their finger to remember anything.

Whoever heard a man say to a woman, "You'd forget your head if it weren't tied on you?" Nobody. That remark is always made by a woman to a man. There never was an absent-minded woman.

This power of memory makes one of the greatest differences between men and women. A man's memory is like the eye of a painter, romanticizing the past and glossing over its harsh aspects. A woman's memory is like the eye of a microscope. It films every event in exact detail. — and it preserves it that way forever.

Since man is the poet of the two sexes, he requires an imperfect memory so that he can look back at the past in mellow regret-trojan. His life is thus endurable because he can forget or minimize his disappointments. A perfect memory would destroy him in time.

But women are made of sterner stuff. They are utter realists. To them the past and present are never really separated. Since they never forget anything, the past and the present are all part of a continuous film, any part of which they can unroll in their mind at any time. And no part ever dims or fades.

Husbands sometimes feel that wives have a sense of remembered wrong rather than remembered rights, but that is probably just a male prejudice. A wife actually can remember anything she wants to, and the memories she brings up at any particular time are those she feels will best serve her purpose.

"What use is it to tell a husband the good things he did in the past?" asked one lady. "You have to remind him of the bad things he did in order to make him behave better in the future. A wife's memory is her husband's conscience."

I would match my wife's memory — or any wife's memory, for that matter — against the combined recollectability of a herd of lady elephants.

Last July 4th Frances asked me, "Do you remember what we did on Independence Day a year ago?"

I couldn't. Frances did. Then she recalled, year by year, every July 4th since we were married — where we were, what we ate, what we did with us, what we wore, what she said to me, what I said to her. During those 14 days of 14 different years, it turned out, I have said and done some thoughtless and foolish things.

"Now do you want me to tell you about each of our wedding anniversaries?" she asked. That sounded like we might get into even deeper water, so I declined with thanks. The demonstration already had left me depressed enough.

"It must be a real burden — to have a woman's memory," I said. "How can a woman live with it?"

"Oh, it's really rather nice," replied Frances. "It makes a wife feel sorry for her husband, because she always remembers how much he has to forgive him for."

Arkansas Legislature Convened; Harmony Is Predicted for Session

House Readies Bill to Decide Race Track Issue

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A bill designed to settle the present controversy over the Arkansas Racing Commission was readied for introduction at the opening session of the Arkansas House this afternoon.

The bill known to have the approval of incoming Gov. Francis Cherry, this morning had the signatures of 48 of the 100 house members and Rep. J. A. Womack of Ouachita County said he believed 60 or more would have signed by time the session opened.

The bill would abolish the present Arkansas Racing Commission and would re-establish a similar 11-member group under the aegis of the Arkansas State Racing Commission.

It would provide that members be appointed for 2-year terms to coincide with terms of the governor rather than to the present staggered terms.

It also would provide that members might be removed by the governor "for cause."

Womack, who with his colleague Rep. Otis Lineberry of Ouachita will officially present the proposed measure, pointed out that it did not limit racing to the present track at Hot Springs.

Womack said the measure definitely would be introduced this afternoon. He said he hoped to obtain this necessary suspension of rules so that it would come up for final action tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Gov. McMath's new Racing Commission meets here this afternoon in an attempt to block establishment of a proposed horse race track in St. Francis County.

Trumanites May Abandon Oil Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Post said today the Truman administration has taken steps to drop a grand jury probe of the U.S. international oil industry and substitute for it a civil suit.

The Post said it had learned on high authority that the National Security Council, which is headed by the President, had recommended that the Justice Department call off the grand jury investigation, now in its preliminary stages.

"At the same time," the newspaper continued, "a key government official said he was informed that President Truman had adopted the recommendation and will direct the attorney general to discontinue the criminal proceeding and substitute a civil injunction suit."

The newspaper said such a suit would ask for a court order directing the oil companies to comply strictly with the anti-trust laws.

The White House, the Justice Department and the National Security Council declined to comment on the Post's report.

The security council is comprised of the President and vice president, secretaries of State and Defense, and the heads of the Mutual Security Agency and the National Security Resources Board. It is the top planning agency concerned with national security.

The Post said it has learned that the council made its decision Friday, basing it upon "evidence that the global interests of the U. S. would be jeopardized by disclosures to be made to the grand jury or at the subsequent trial."

Court officials said today that the docket was up to date and that all pending matters would probably be disposed of in one day of court.

McIntyre First U. S. Prince of Church

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

ROME, (AP) — James Francis Cardinal McIntyre became the first prince of the church in history from the Far Western United States today.

He received the "biglietto" formally notifying him of his elevation from Magr. Thomas Ryan, an Irishman, at 10:40 a.m. (4:40 a.m., EST) at the historic North American Pontifical College here.

The new cardinal, in an address to a large group of friends and fellow clergymen gathered with him, said it was "with profound reverence and a deep sense of unworthiness," that he received the "biglietto," a written notification from the Vatican.

"In extending our thanks and our expression of gratitude," he added, "we commence with acts of devout adoration and homage to our Divine Saviour, the Lord and Master of all graces, blessing and mercies."

"The non-Catholic people of California and the Archdiocese of Los Angeles join heartily," the cardinal said, "with all their Catholic brethren in acknowledging with appreciation the recognition that has come to their faith."

"A tremendous joy has befallen the hearts of a faithful Catholic people and has stimulated them to prayerful acknowledgment of this renowned honor and distinction that has been bestowed upon their archbishop and their metropolis."

Slayer May Yet Save His Life

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Convicted slayer Carl Austin DeWolf is waiting today to die in the electric chair Jan. 27, but he hopes his bald head may yet save his life.

DeWolf, convicted of slaying a Tulsa detective in 1946 after a running gun battle, is light complexioned and bald, except for sideburns. New witnesses have testified the man they saw fleeing from the scene of the shooting had bushy hair and a dark complexion.

The conflicting testimony has prompted Gov. Johnston Murray to issue four stays of execution and has provoked an unprecedented review by the State Pardon Institutions Committee, which convenes today.

Committee Chairman Sen. Kirksey Nix, a McAlester, Okla., criminal lawyer, says frankly he believes DeWolf has been railroaded. He said he has five new witnesses who will testify the slayer had bushy hair. He said if the committee believes, after the testimony that DeWolf is not the murderer, it will ask the governor for a fifth stay of execution and start proceedings for a new trial.

The State Pardon and Parole board has twice refused to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment. After an extensive review of the case the board recently voted unanimously that DeWolf must die, and Gov. Murray announced he had given the doomed man his last stay of execution unless something happens to change the entire complexion of things. The legislative committee may do just that.

Quake Recorded in Alaska Gulf

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP) — A Canadian seismologist reported a "moderately strong" earthquake yesterday had its epicenter in the Gulf of Alaska, about 1,000 miles northwest of here.

W. G. Mendenhall, seismologist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, said the tremor was recorded at 2:57:37 p.m. Pacific Standard Time and undoubtedly was the same quake picked up on the San Francisco of California seismograph at 2:55:45.

Leaders in Both Houses to Be Picked Today

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The 50th General Assembly formally convened for its 60-day session at straight up noon today.

In the House, Ted McCasland, who served as chief clerk at the 1951 session, called the body to order.

In the Senate the same duty was performed by Jim Shady, secretary of the 1951 Senate and now incoming Gov. Francis Cherry's legislative secretary.

The House moved quickly to the first business on its program, the selection of Rep. C. F. Smith of Crittenden County as speaker pro tem.

The 35 senators were scheduled to take up, what to them, is probably the most important business of the session.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas 59th General Assembly was to convene at noon today, and only the routine business of getting organized for the 60-day session was scheduled.

The Senate will elect a president pro tem, choosing between Sen. Russell E. Bird of Saltonstall and Sen. Leo Rogers of Warren.

The House already has its speaker pro tem, Carroll Hollenhorst of Bartlett County, who has obtained enough pledged votes to insure election, and he has no opposition.

Nels Cox will serve as clerk of the House, and his assistant will be Hal E. Moody of Back River. G. C. Coombs, a Little Rock attorney, will be secretary of the Senate.

By tradition, the first bill introduced in each chamber is for payment of salaries and expenses for that branch.

As the session gets underway, all indications point to friendly relations between the Legislature and Gov. Francis Cherry, the customary "honeymoon" for a first-term governor.

So far, there have been only minor signs of possible conflict. The Arkansas Legislative Council cut more than two million dollars off the budgets proposed by Cherry's designated department heads, and salary increases proposed for nearly all state employees often were criticized by the Councilmen.

Two major budgets — for the Highway and Education Departments — were not acted upon by the ed previous assemblies — taxes, highways and schools. Cherry proposes to solve these problems — without a tax increase — by revising the revenue structure and creating a new Department of Administration and Finance. The governor-elect hasn't released details of his proposed tax revision program.

He apparently regards his proposed new fiscal department as an effective barrier to "loose spending of state funds." Cherry hopes by revising the collection of revenue and preventing waste of tax money to provide the revenue necessary to operate the schools, long troubled by the finances.

His highway program is expected to meet some opposition. One proposal, a $15,000 annual salary for the highway director has drawn sharp criticism from several legislators.

Another possible source of conflict is the distribution of highway construction funds between secondary and primary roads. Sen. W. J. Floral of Rector already has said he will introduce legislation to require equal distribution of highway money. Administration officials are expected to protest that any such provision would hamper their operations.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The traditional House Bill No. 1 to appropriate $254,000 for salary and expenses of the lower chamber was ready for introduction today when the 1953 legislative session opened at noon.

Included was an item of $30,740, at least mostly for patronage to non-working employees, mainly relatives of House members.

The item was listed as being for miscellaneous part time clerical help and labor, extra help expenses of pre-session organizations and anticipated additional expenses.

The bill would appropriate $120,180 for salaries of members, $1,500 for mileage for members and $48,000 for salaries of regular employees.

Old House members are given $10 per day for patronage purposes; new members $7 per day.

NEW YORK COTTON — NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures resumed their long decline today as the market was subjected to heavy commission house liquidation, reflecting a loss of confidence in the cotton situation. Losses at

McEntire obtained judgment for $40,000 against C & L and Employers Mutual.

These two then sued Delta contending that under terms of the contract the latter firm was negligent in allowing McEntire to be injured and C & L and its insurers should be reimbursed.

NEW YORK COTTON — NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures resumed their long decline today as the market was subjected to heavy commission house liquidation, reflecting a loss of confidence in the cotton situation. Losses at

Co., under an indemnity contract. Several years ago the construction company received a contract to expand power lines of the cooperative and while the work was underway one Grady L. McEntire was injured seriously when contacted with an energized pole.

McEntire obtained judgment for $40,000 against C & L and Employers Mutual.

These two then sued Delta contending that under terms of the contract the latter firm was negligent in allowing McEntire to be injured and C & L and its insurers should be reimbursed.

The Jefferson Circuit Court dismissed the suit on motion of Delta but the Supreme Court said this was in error for the lower court to overrule a motion to dismiss.

North, East Promised Some Relief

By United Press

Relief from bitter wintry storms came to most of the North today but the East, still reeling under a weekend barrage of snow and ice, got another blanket of white.

The Weather Bureau said rain or snow was reported from North Carolina to Maine this morning, with the snow being confined to areas from New York northward.

Temperatures skidded toward the 20s in the New York area early today, hampering work crews trying to restore utilities to more than 50,000 suburban families still feeling the effects of the weekend storms. Inclement weather has been blamed for the deaths of 48 persons, including 31 in New England over the weekend.

Clear, cold weather was predicted for Northern New York suburbs, where most damage to power lines occurred.

High winds and rain, followed by freezing weather, snapped tree branches and toppled them onto electric and telephone lines, raising havoc in Northern Westchester, Northern New Jersey and Connecticut.

At the peak of the trouble, about 150,000 houses were without electric power and some without heat. But repair crews rushed in from points as far south as Baltimore, Md., and succeeded in restoring about two-thirds of affected lines one time were more than $2 a bale, with the list in early afternoon not too far above the lows of the day.

Late afternoon prices were 25 cents to $1.70 a bale lower than the previous close. March 32.34, May 32.82 and July 33.20.

or to the federal government, and the court majority decided that actually the sale was to the contractor and that therefore Kern-Linschek should have collected and paid to the revenue commissioner the two per cent tax.

The majority opinion noted that the contracting combine received a fee of $300,000 for their services above reimbursement for all expenses and salaries in construction of the 300-million dollar job.

The contracting combine was composed of Winston Bros. Co., C. F. Hatlin and Sons Co., Missouri Valley Contractor Inc., and Schlitz Construction Co., Inc. (WIMS).

The Supreme Court directed Jefferson Circuit Court to proceed with trial of a suit of C & L Electric Co-op Association, and its insurer the Employers Mutual Liability Insurance Co. of Wisconsin for recovery of all or part of $40,000 from the Delta Construction

Co., under an indemnity contract. Several years ago the construction company received a contract to expand power lines of the cooperative and while the work was underway one Grady L. McEntire was injured seriously when contacted with an energized pole.

DOROTHY DIX

Limit of Forbearance

Dear Miss Dix: Will you tell me just how much a wife is supposed to take from her husband? I've tried in every way to keep my home for the sake of our children, aged 10 and 16. Until the past three years I was very happy with a man I felt was the best husband that ever was; a church going man, of high ideals and a wonderful father to our children. Then he started going with a much younger woman. When I found out about it, he gave her up and asked for another chance. Two months passed, during which I never referred to the incident, then I discovered he hadn't given her up at all. Again he promised to give her up, and was so convincing about it that I believed him. That was a year and a half ago, and he has been sweet and kind as could be since. Now however, I find that he is having an affair with her, I would have left him long ago if it were not for the children. I hate to break up their home.

JANE
Answer: The real reason, Jane, is not how much a wife is supposed to take from her husband, but how much she is willing to take. One woman will fly to a divorce court because her husband criticizes her clothes, another seeks legal advice because hubby doesn't whisper sweet nothings in her ear all day long, while another will meekly endure beatings, go to work to support a shiftless man, or wear the same clothes for years because a peevish husband with a well paying job can't be pried loose from a nickel. The basic obligations of a married couple are pretty well summed up in the words of the marriage ceremony, to which, regrettably, many of them pay little attention being concerned at the moment with the externals of a wedding. Man is given to Wanderlust. Men are more inclined to strain at the responsibilities and restrictions of matrimony than women. This is understandable enough, since woman's basic nature seeks security. Man, on the other hand is a creature of wanderlust. Being also, a civilized, intelligent creature of God, he is supposed to learn to curb those tendencies which threaten the sanctity of his home. Some do, of course, and some do not!

The first transgression may lead to a stricken conscience, but as each fall from grace is forgiven by a loving wife, succeeding infidelities come easier followed by glib and profuse promises of reform. How empty these can be is attested by many, many broken hearts. Just when each woman reaches the saturation point of forgiveness is an individual problem that only she can solve, with perhaps the aid of her spiritual adviser or a marriage counselor. She must weigh the relative value of her home, children and security against the knowledge that she has lost, or at least is sharing, her husband's love with another woman.

Usually an erring husband regains his balance after one affair, and frequently he becomes a more loving and considerate husband than ever. Hope need not be abandoned for even the most flagrant philanderer; when he reaches the point where he has lost his attraction to other women and his money is beginning to run out, there's always home and a forgiving wife to take him back.

Your husband, Jane, is the type of cheater who isn't likely to mend his ways unless you give him a terrific jolt. Meekness has little chance of changing him. And why should it? Right now he is enjoying the excitement of a clandestine affair, while at the same time he has the comfort and security of his home, along with the knowledge that you will always be there with open arms.

I offer small comfort, I know, but there simply is no magic formula to change a weak man into a responsible character.

Dear Miss Dix: The boy I love is only 17, and I'm 20. He wants to get married but I know it isn't proper to marry a man younger. He is mature for his age, and has a good job.

Answer: There certainly is no objection to marrying a man younger than oneself, but to marry a boy of 17 is rather out of line. Why not wait a year or two and let it certainly won't make you too old for matrimony, and will give him a chance to catch up a little.

Leadership of NATO Is Challenge

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The first great challenge to Gen. Eisenhower's presidency is in his ability to provide both spiritual and practical leadership for Western Europe.

Spiritual leadership in the sense of inducing the Europeans to rise

and suspicions and to achieve some measure of unity for the common good is the first challenge.

Practical leadership in the sense of guiding the arrangements — economic, political and military — which will give unity meaning through adequate defense in case of war with Russia or, better, in discouraging such a war.

An idea as last spring it seemed the unity and the defense might be translated into reality. In the past week hopes for both suffered staggering blows. Both France and Germany began to backslide.

Several years ago, while dismayed by the uncertainty of Russian intentions, the countries of Western Europe realized the necessity of common defense and began moving in that direction through the Atlantic Pact.

What seemed necessary was a new concept: A single army made up of troops from the pact partners on the continent, a kind of merged army, under a single leadership.

Yet, without troops from West

Germany as part of this army since

West Germany, severed from East

Germany by the Russians, would be in the direct line of attack.

But first an important detail had to be taken care of: The big war time allies — U.S., Britain, France

— were still technically at war with Germany.

They couldn't let her re-arm, it only to the extent of supplying divisions for the unified European army, without some peace arrangements. So they signed with

West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer what was in effect a peace treaty.

This was done in late May. Just before Eisenhower returned home from his NATO command to run for the presidency. And the next day France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, Belgium and Holland signed an agreement for a unified army.

It was not final. The agreement had to be ratified by the respective parliaments of the six nations, which called themselves the European Defense Community.

France's Foreign Minister Schuman, main sponsor in his country for European unity, hoped to get ratification. But he had opposition from Frenchmen who shuddered at the thought of a re-armed Germany.

In West Germany Adenauer, too, had opposition from his countrymen.

Last week in a reshuffle of the French Cabinet Schuman was out.

The critics of the unity agreement are talking of changes before any approval can be given. The changes could be fatal.

Adenauer, watching what was shaping up in France, yielded to pressure from his own countrymen and said the treaty needed changing, or, rather, amendment.

A job which seemed nearly on its way to completion when Eisenhower or left Europe last spring now needs rethinking or overhauling or a new approach.

Tammany Hall, New York political organization, derives its name
